

ABSTRACT

Virtually all country in the world is having their own share of drug abuse and narcotics problems. Drug trafficking in Indonesia has escalated into a terrible state. In the past, Indonesia were merely a transit spot within the global trafficking, however Indonesia is currently one of the major market of drugs, and even producing its own drugs. BNN, which was entrusted by the government as the vocal point in countering narcotics and drug abuse, was overwhelmed by the drug dealers. The drug manufacturers and distributors had evolved into a highly organized international, syndicates that utilize state-of-the-art equipments. Furthermore, BNN also encounters other numerous obstacles which prevents them from achieving their objectives. Meanwhile, DEA is playing an active role in countering the united states. Therefore, DEA is encouraged to cooperate with BNN, and providing resources to achieve the mutual objective of DEA and BNN.

The purpose of this research is to investigate the roe of DEA within the BNN effort to control drug trafficking in Indonesia, within 2004-2008 period, the data was collected through literature review and descriptive method, in order to help BNN countering and controlling drug trafficking in Indonesia, DEA provides several assistance such as providing intelligence, conducting training programs for BNN agents, initiating seminars, and providing material assistances.

Despite the numerous obstacles in achieving its goal, the cooperation with DEA has allow BNN and every other law enforcer in Indonesia to become more effective in anticipating and handling drug trafficking cases in Indonesia. The success of DEA and BNN cooperation is demonstrated through the increasing number of drug cases that had been solved by BNN.
