As the parent's role as the first educator of his children seems to be increasingly neglected in our society. By reason of various busy parents either because of the insistence of economic needs, profession or hobby of his son. Such conditions that if not realized long ago - the age will be a barrier to the closeness of the relationship between parents and their children, which means disturbed interrelations between the two. The role of parents is very influential in the development of mental attitude and behavior of children and children themselves are in need of more attention than parents. Parents in caring, raising and educating children are required to provide the best, this is a noble task that certainly can not be separated from obstacles and obstacles. Based on the processing and data analysis that has been obtained during the research period in SMP Pasundan 2 Bandung, the author tries to conclude that the parents play an important and very influential role on the education of children. Every parent wants to nurture a child to be a good child has a strong personality and a healthy mental attitude and morals are commendable. Parents are the first personal coaches in a child's life. Any experience that a child passes through, either through sight, hearing or the treatment he receives will determine his personal coaching. Their parent's personality, attitudes and way of life are indirect elements of education, which will naturally enter into the child's growing personality. Here the duty of parents to be their child's guide, so that the development of children who are experienced at the beginning of life can take place as well as possible, without significant interference.
