

ABSTRACT

Rakha Putra (2019). The influence of extracurricular activities in shaping civic disposition learners.

This research aims to determine the influence of extracurricular activities in shaping civic disposition students. The goal in this study was to find a civic disposition that was formed in extracurricular activities. Civic disposition is a fundamental thing that points to the public and private characters. This research is aimed at any character that is formed in extracurricular activities. The research method used is a quantitative descriptive research method with a research population is a class XI student. This study uses poll and interview data collection. The analytical techniques used are regression, correlation and T-tests where these techniques are used to figure out the relationship between the two variables. Based on the results shows that there is a influence of extracurricular activities in shaping civic disposition learners. So it can be concluded that there is a relationship of extracurricular activities in shaping civic disposition learners with the character formed namely hard work, discipline, religious, curiosity, communicative, love the homeland, tolerance, Creative, independent, and social care.

Keywords: extracurricular activities, civic disposition