ABSTRACT

This study aims to determine profitability, company size, good corporate governance disclosure and sustainability report disclosure in manufacturing companies listed on the Indonesia Stock Exchange during the 2018-2020 period, as well as to determine the effect of profitability, company size, and good corporate governance disclosure on the sustainability report disclosure.

The research method used in this research is descriptive and verification data analysis with a quantitative approach. The population in this study there are 201 manufacturing companies listed on the Indonesia Stock Exchange during the 2018-2020 period. Then for the sampling technique used purposive sampling so that the research sample obtained as many as 12 companies that meet the criteria.

The results show that profitability has a positive and significant effect with a contribution of 18,6%, company size has a positive and significant effect with a contribution of 20,3%, and good corporate governance disclosure partially has a positive and significant influence with a contribution of 18% on the sustainability report disclosure.

Keywords: Profitability, firm size, good corporate governance disclosure, and sustainability report disclosure.